

VADEMEECUM

How we look after each other at cuddle-first, sex-positive parties

PEOPLE

Be kind and attentive. For some people this might be a new situation, and some of us are or were romantically or sexually involved with one another.

Don't know anyone yet? If meeting someone beforehand, somewhere less crowded, would make you more comfortable, reach out to us and we'll make it happen.

LATECOMERS AND LANGUAGE

Life happens, and there might be latecomers.
Make it easy for them to mingle. Still, arrive before doors close.

Not everyone speaks the local language. Stick to English so anyone can jump into a conversation.

PRONOUNS AND NAMES

Not everyone is cisgender. Ask for people's pronouns, and use them.

Never ask for anyone's deadname. Name tags will be provided.

NO UNICORN HUNTING

You know what we're talking about. Right?

ESCALATION

First and foremost, this is a safe space where you can just be.

No horny until the ban is lifted, so everyone can enjoy their time without worrying about things escalating all of a sudden.

WHEN THE BAN LIFTS

Nobody suddenly gets naked. If the vibe is right and people are horny, things might escalate. They absolutely don't have to, and the hosts can veto it.

Some rooms might be marked private (hosts only) or non-horny. That still applies after the ban lifts, unless the hosts say otherwise.

NOT THE GOAL

This is not a sex buffet to satisfy your hunger and desires. Don't objectify the people, or the party itself.

Escalation is a consequence of the atmosphere we create together. And you can opt out at any moment: no problem, no judgement, no drama whatsoever.

PRACTICAL STUFF

Be freshly tested: less than three months, as a ballpark. Fresher if you've been naughty, older if you've been chaste.

Bringing toys? Nothing easily breakable, and make sure they're charged. We provide condoms and lube; bring your own if you prefer.

Group sex rules start here.

Anything but an enthusiastic yes is a no.

BEFORE ANYTHING

Everyone is expected to be well versed in communication, sex education and boundaries. Some of you don't know each other yet, so to make everyone feel safe:

Freshen up and come prepared.

Read the room.

Don't try to convince anyone to participate, not even yourself.

CONSENT

Never presume consent. Even if the person you want to engage with is banging five other people at the same time, it doesn't mean they want to bang you.

Ask about boundaries, and act accordingly.

Make it easy to say no, and accept it gracefully. Nobody should feel uncomfortable for saying no to you.

Mind body image. Some people have body or image issues. Don't put pressure on anyone.

HYGIENE

Condoms. Always. Also on toys.

No double dipping. Ever. Changing partners means a new condom, for you and for the toy you're using.

Same goes for hands. Changing partners means washing them thoroughly, no matter how unsexy it is.

Communicate. You know... talk. And listen.

REMEMBER

It can be overwhelming, even for the most experienced of us. So please, please, please:

Check in on each other.

Don't get blinded by horniness.

Pause, and take care of yourself and the people next to you.

The room adapts to the needs of its least comfortable person.

Don't be afraid to voice your discomfort.

AFTERCARE

When there's an aftercare session, it's optional and open to whoever needs or wants it: unwind, debrief, talk, or just exist in silence, eat leftovers and get cuddles on the couch with a comfort movie.

If we missed something, or there's anything we can do to make this more comfortable for you, reach out.

We look after one another, we care,
we connect, and we let ourselves
be vulnerable.

let's revel.
